Use of Cornell’s Name, Logos, Trademarks, and Insignias

POLICY STATEMENT

Cornell University allows the use of its name, and its logos, trademarks, insignias, and other indicia (hereafter known as “marks”) only with permission, as set forth in the principles and procedures of this policy.

REASON FOR POLICY

The name “Cornell University” connotes a proprietary interest in activities housed at or sponsored by the institution. For that reason, Cornell has adopted certain authorization procedures to ensure that the use of Cornell’s name and marks reflects the standards and values that are vital to the university’s well-being and that it seeks to uphold.

POLICY 4.10

Use of Cornell’s Name, Logos, Trademarks, and Insignias

RESPONSIBILITIES

The major responsibilities each party has in connection with University Policy 4.10, Use of Cornell’s Name, Logos, Trademarks, and Insignias, are as follows:

| Committee on Uses of Cornell’s Name and Marks | Develop standards for when it is appropriate to grant permission to use Cornell’s name and marks.
Grant permission, when appropriate, to individuals and groups for the use of the name “Cornell University” or “Cornell” in publication titles or organization names implying or tending to imply some official connection with the university. |
|---|---|
| Senior Director of Public Affairs and Licensing, University Communications | Receive requests for the use of Cornell’s name and marks.
Approve, as appropriate, requests for use of Cornell’s name or marks on memorabilia, products, goods, services, student projects, advertising, or promotional materials.
Approve, in accordance with standards developed by the Committee on Uses of Cornell’s Name and Marks, requests for the use of Cornell’s name in the names of publications and organizations.
When appropriate, bring requests for the use of Cornell’s name and marks to the Committee on Uses of Cornell’s Name and Marks. |
| Individual (Faculty or Staff Member) | Ensure the proper use of Cornell’s name and marks in the conduct of your activities.
Allow your official university title or the name of the university to be used only in ways that do not state or imply Cornell endorsement of a non-university project or product.
State clearly, in reports and papers under consulting agreements or personal service contracts, that opinions expressed by Cornell community members are those of the individuals and not official positions of the university.
Use the great seal and the corporate seal only in ways that are in compliance with the bylaws of the university. |
| Student Activities Office | Manage the procedure for registration of student organizations, including conditions placed upon the use of Cornell’s name. |
| Unit Head | Approve the use of Cornell’s name and marks in the ordinary course of university business. |
| University Counsel/Secretary of the Corporation | Co-chair the Committee on Uses of Cornell’s Name and Marks.
Consult, upon request, regarding the establishment or use of university or college seals. |
| Vice President for University Relations | Co-chair the Committee on Uses of Cornell’s Name and Marks. |

POLICY 4.10
Use of Cornell’s Name, Logos, Trademarks, and Insignias

PROCEDURES

Approval Process

The following paragraphs provide procedures for securing approval for specific uses of Cornell’s name and marks.

Identification

Faculty and staff members may use Cornell’s name as a factual reference to identify themselves in a manner that does not imply university endorsement. For example, using “John Smith, Professor of Psychology, Cornell University” on a book jacket or journal article or on a business card. However, the use of Cornell letterhead, address, or other identification to suggest or imply university support for a personal viewpoint should be avoided.

Ordinary Course of University Business

Responsibility for use of Cornell’s name and marks in the ordinary course of university business rests with the unit head. Questions regarding such use should be directed to the unit head. Examples of such use:

1. Official unit names. For example, “Cornell Institute for Public Affairs.”

2. Official event names. For example, “Cornell Conference on Law,” or “Cornell Nutrition Conference,” when approved by the appropriate dean or unit head and operated as a university event.

◆ Note: The use of Cornell’s name and marks for the above purposes may be subject to additional rules. For example, stylistic, typographical, and other visual standards are given on Cornell’s Brand Book at brand.cornell.edu.

◆ Note: The use of Cornell’s name and marks in the ordinary course of university business may involve extended duration licensing and branding, or promotional items or services for sale or distribution. Guidance on these topics should be sought from the Senior Director of Public Affairs and Licensing, University Communications.

Purposes that May Require University Review and/or Approval

The following uses of Cornell’s name and marks require university review and approval. For these uses, contact the Senior Director of Public Affairs and Licensing, University Communications.

◆ Note: Those with responsibilities under this policy should consult with University Counsel if they have questions related to agreements or other commitments authorizing use of the Cornell’s name or marks.

Memorabilia, Products, and Goods

In order to protect its name and reputation, Cornell participates in a licensing program that regulates the use of Cornell’s name and marks on memorabilia, products, and goods (e.g., Cornell tee shirts, caps, key chains, mugs, pens, etc.). This process helps prevent bootlegging and ensures that Cornell’s name and marks are used only on those products approved by the university. All such uses of Cornell’s name and marks (including by fraternities, sororities, student organizations, etc.) must be approved in writing prior to production or manufacture. These procedures also apply to student projects, including those that are for class credit as part of defined academic projects. Requests for the above uses should be submitted to the Senior Director of Public Affairs and Licensing, University Communications.

Advertising or Promotional Material
Except as specifically authorized in writing, use of Cornell’s name and marks in advertising and other promotional vehicles is prohibited when such use is likely to be perceived as an endorsement, even if such an endorsement is not the intention of the person or organization seeking to use Cornell’s name or marks. Requests for the above uses should be submitted to the Senior Director of Public Affairs and Licensing, University Communications. An example is the use of the Cornell name as part of the name of any outside business or other activity, such as “eCornell.”

Names of Publications
Except for those uses included in the “Ordinary Course of University Business” segment of this policy, the use of the name “Cornell University” or “Cornell” in publication titles implying or tending to imply some official connection with the university, e.g., in the title of a book, such as “The Cornell Book of…,” is prohibited except with the written permission of the university and under such restrictions and explanations as it may impose.

Upon the affirmative recommendations of the appropriate unit head, direct requests for consideration to the Senior Director of Public Affairs and Licensing, University Communications. When appropriate, this individual will bring the requests to the Committee on Uses of Cornell’s Name and Marks. Decisions of the committee are final.

Independent publications that have received permission to use the name “Cornell” in their titles must print the following prominent disclaimer on the front page of the publication in type and size clearly legible to the reader:

“An independent [student] publication.”

They are also required to include the following statement within the publication masthead in type and size clearly legible to the reader:

“[NAME OF INDEPENDENT OR STUDENT ENTITY], an independent [student] organization located at Cornell University, produced, and is responsible for the content of, this publication. This publication was not reviewed or approved by, nor does it necessarily express or reflect the policies or opinions of, Cornell University or its designated representatives.”
POLICY 4.10

Names of Student Organizations

Student Organizations must follow the registration process managed by the Student Activities Office. For more information, or to register your student organization, go to orgsync.rso.cornell.edu/Registration_home

Organizations that have received permission to use the name “Cornell” in their names must use the university name in a locational sense when entering into official and/or legally binding documents. For example, “Cornell Rugby Football Club” should be “Rugby Football Club at Cornell.”

Names of Other Organizations

Except those uses included in the “Ordinary Course of University Business” segment of this policy, the use of the name “Cornell University” or “Cornell,” in non-student organization names implying or tending to imply some official connection with the university, is prohibited except with the written permission of the university and under such restrictions as it may impose. Direct requests for consideration to the Senior Director of Public Affairs and Licensing, University Communications. When appropriate, this individual will bring the requests to the Committee on Uses of Cornell’s Name and Marks. Decisions of the committee are final.

Individual Responsibility

All faculty, staff members, students, and representatives of alumni organizations are responsible for ensuring proper use of Cornell’s name and marks in the conduct of their individual activities. Faculty, staff members, and others associated with Cornell must not allow their official university titles or the name of the university to be used in ways that state or imply Cornell endorsement in connection with project, activity, or product promotions. It should also be understood clearly, and must be stated clearly, that opinions expressed by a faculty or staff member in preparing a report or paper under a consulting agreement or personal service contract are the opinions of the individual and not official positions of Cornell. When engaged in political or other public statements or correspondence, any member of the faculty or staff who so identifies himself/herself, should clearly state that he/she is speaking individually and not on behalf of the university.

University/College Seals

Use of the great seal and the corporate seal of Cornell University will be reserved to those official uses specifically set forth in the bylaws of the university and will in no circumstance be used for commercial purposes as described herein. Questions regarding the establishment or use of university or college seals should be directed to the Secretary of the Corporation.
POLICY 4.10

Use of Cornell’s Name, Logos, Trademarks, and Insignias

Committee on Uses of Cornell’s Name and Marks

The Committee on Uses of Cornell’s Name and Marks is co-chaired by the Vice President for University Relations and the Secretary of the Corporation, and meets as necessary to implement this policy. This committee consists of the co-chairs as permanent members. Other committee member positions will vary depending on the issue, e.g., the Vice President for Student and Academic Services (or designee) if a student organization issue is involved; the Provost (or designee) if a faculty issue is involved; and the Provost for Medical Affairs (or designee) if a Weill Cornell Medical College issue is involved. The committee is responsible for (1) developing standards for when it is appropriate to grant permission to use Cornell’s name and marks, and (2) granting permission, when appropriate, to individuals and groups for the use of the name “Cornell University” or “Cornell” in publication titles or organization names.

Violations of this Policy

Any person or organization found to be in violation of this policy will be subject to disciplinary action. In the case of a student or student organization, suspected violations will be referred to the Judicial Administrator and/or the Office of the Dean of Students, as appropriate. In the case of an employee or employee organization, suspected violations will be referred to an appropriate supervisor or human resource official. In the case of a faculty member or faculty organization, suspected violations will be referred to the dean of the college or school, Dean of the Faculty, or Provost, as appropriate.

Violations by external agencies should be reported to the Secretary of the Corporation.
